

Some of these letters were edited substantially for length in the print edition. They are published here at the lengths they were submitted.

Nov. 20, 2013 5:55 PM

Both political parties measured, fall short

In the Advertiser one recent morning, there were two articles of putrid hate towards the Republicans. I was eating breakfast and the more I read from these two writers, the more I wanted to upchuck from the stench of the garbage written.

I don't know Mr. Hess or Mr. King, but I can safely assume they are not independent thinkers. How do I know this? If you hate the Republicans so much you spew forth loathing at every opportunity, you must be a blind, deaf and dumb party aficionado.

There are some good things from both parties, and I am sick of the idiocy that permeates our national debate. With all the problems this nation is facing, if anyone thinks the Democrats are the answer to our woes, you are living in the Land of Delusion. Same is true for the Republicans.

Solution: it takes serious compromise and working as a team, even as cliché as that may sound. The worst team player in Washington is Harry Reid, who likes to stand in front his mirror and plead: "Mirror, mirror, on the wall, who is the best political hack of all?"

We as a nation are destroying ourselves from the hate we have allowed to become our way of life. For every hate statement of one party, I guarantee you the other party is just as guilty and citations abound. Caveat emptor for those who believe the words of these destructive naysayers who live in glass houses and accuse from on high.

Ken Scott
Montgomery

 The Original Article follows on the next page. *****

 The Montgomery Advertiser article as it appeared is on the last page *****

Ken Scott, EdD

From: Ken Scott, EdD <skinner777@knology.net>
Sent: Wednesday, November 20, 2013 7:10 AM
To: letters@montgomeryadvertiser.com
Cc: 'skinner777@knology.net'
Subject: For Your Consideration

Please see the email below. I would ask consideration for the article below which is rebuttal to what I have read from the writers noted in the article. In fact, I left out the hatred and added some civility to the discussion...

Thank you,
Ken Scott
Montgomery

Writers' hatred sickening

In the Advertiser this morning, there were two articles of putrid hate towards the Republicans. I was eating breakfast and the more I read from these two writers, I almost upchucked from the stench of the garbage written.

I don't know Mr. Hess or Mr. King, but I can safely assume they are not independent thinkers. How do I know this? If you hate the Republicans so much you spew forth loathing at every opportunity, you must be a 'blind, deaf, and dumb' Party Aficionado.

There are some good things from both parties, and I for one, am sick of the idiocy that permeates our national debate. With all the problems this nation is facing, if anyone thinks the Democrats are the answer to our woes, you are living in the Land of Delusion. Same is true for the Republicans. Solution: it takes serious compromise and working as a team, even as cliché as that may sound. The worst team-player in Washington is Harry Reid, who likes to stand in front his mirror and plead: "Mirror, mirror on the wall, who is the best political hack of all?"

We as a nation are destroying ourselves from the hate we have allowed to become our way-of-life. For every hate statement of one party, I guarantee you, the other party is just as guilty and citations abound. 'Caveat emptor' for those who believe the words of these destructive-naysayers that live in glass houses and accuse from on-high!

Ken Scott
Montgomery

Both political parties measured, fall short

In the Advertiser one recent morning, there were two articles of putrid hate towards the Republicans. I was eating breakfast and the more I read from these two writers, the more I wanted to upchuck from the stench of the garbage written.

I don't know Mr. Hess or Mr. King, but I can safely assume they are not independent thinkers. How do I know this? If you hate the Republicans so much you spew forth loathing at every opportunity, you must be a blind, deaf and dumb party aficionado.

There are some good things from both parties, and I am sick of the idiocy that permeates our national debate. With all the problems this nation is facing, if anyone thinks the Democrats are the answer to our woes, you are living in the Land of Delusion. Same is true for the Republicans.

Ken Scott
Montgomery